Concerning the Two Large

B O O K S of E N T R I E S. 1674.

WHereas the Two Books Of Entries (viz.) the Lord Cooke's and Mr. William Raftall's being Books of great Authority, Reputation, and Use in the Law, have by reason of the long intermission of re-printing the same (occasioned by the late Troubles, and the want of Undertakers to go through with the Charge of new Impressions) been for many years very scarce; But now are undertaken to be re-printed.

Which, to carry on, so that no delay be made in a Work so great, useful and profitable to the Students and Professors in the Laws of this REA L M: And that all Persons well-wishers to this undertaking, may have a fair and ample satisfaction and benefit from the Undertakers; And as a proper and easie expedient thereunto: It is proposed,

1. That whosoever will be pleased to deposite 10 s. in the Hands of any one of the Persons herein after named, for his first payment towards Raftall's Entries, shall be entituled to one of them in Quires.

And so likewise whosoever will be pleased to deposite 10 s. for his first payment towards the Lord Cooke's Entries, shall likewise be entituled to one of them in Quires.

Raftall's Entries is intended to be first put in hand, and accordingly to be first finished; and Cooke's Entries next, and to be finished in convenient time after.

The next payment is thirty shillings, to be paid at the Reception of Raftall's Entries; and in like manner 30 s. more at the Reception of Cooke's Entries, which amounts to 40 s. a piece.

The Subscribers may please to understand for their better encouragement, that the said Books will be worth 50 s. a piece, and will not be sold for less to any but the Subscribers, upon such their Subscriptions, the like being now sold at 4 l. 10 s. and sometimes 5 l.

Whosoever, for himself or Friends, depositeth 3 l. and subscribeth for six of Raftall's Entries, shall be entituled to a seventh Book, and at the Reception of seven, shall pay but his second payment for six.

And in like manner, whosoever shall deposite 3 l. and subscribe for six of Cooke's Entries, shall receive a Seventh Book, as aforesaid.

Raftall's Entries will be finished in Easter Term, 1670. And Cooke's Entries in convenient time after.

The Letter and Paper shall be of the same with the Sheet already printed for a Pattern, and page for page with the former Editions; The Errors shall carefully be Corrected.
